- #Local History – Poetic Pioneer – Evidence is constantly coming to light to prove that our pioneer forebears were not always too busy wresting a living from the soil to lift their eyes to the stars. In this column recently we mentioned a Mr Ludwig whose sensitivities were greatly offended by the ugly name of “Slaughterhouse Road”. Now we have received very interesting information about Moonshine Road and learn for the first time for the reason for its beautiful Mabel Sygrove, Miro Street gives the following facts: - “My grandfather, Mr Thomas Hollis Stace arrived in New Zealand from London in 1839. The journey took six months. My grandfather, a farmer, took up land adjacent to the present Pauatahanui township, his family of nine being born there. When my father was 19 years old and a younger brother 17, they bought land with heavy bush on it, intending to clear it and farm it. This was about seven miles from Pautatahanui on what is now known as the old Moonshine Road. They were discussing a name for their holding when my father remarked “See how beautifully the noon shines on the hills – suppose we name it ‘Moonshine?’” and so my father was the originator of this name – surely a pretty one, so why change it to Cottle Street?” Out thanks to Mrs Sygrove for this fascinating sidelight on one of our historic old roads reference Upper Hutt City website newspaper collection Upper Hutt Leader newspaper 21 May 1964

STACE miscellaneous information

Moonshine District

Thomas Walter Stace and his family arrived 1853 in New Zealand. His wife was Harriette Matilda nee Bannister. Their daughter Mabel Jessie Sygrove (1881-1966) was quoted (Trentham School 1979 booklet) as saying around 1869 her father Thomas Walter (1850-1921) suggest the name for the property because of the way the moon shone on the hills. A different naming origin for Moonshine was published in 'The Reed New Zealand Directory' and 'Upper Hutt the History' by J A Kelleher. They record that the road was named after a story of illegal distilling of whiskey in the hills between Trentham and Judgeford. Moonshine would have been too far from the (customers) men working at the saw-mills in the Akatarawa valley and the Kaitoke railway men working on the Rimutaka Incline. Moonshine Hill road is situated between State highway 2 up into the Moonshine Valley towards the Judgeford Porirua Suburb. In 1987 the old bridge over the Hutt River between Moonshine Road and Moonshine Hill Road was demolished to make way for the new curved bridge on the new River Road on State Highway 2. A new little bridge was also built on Moonshine Hill Road. The two old bridges were eventually demolished.

Thomas Walter Stace's daughter Mabel Sygrow writes to the 1964 Upper Hutt Leader and states: - Her father and uncle purchased the land 11 kilometres east of a block owned by their father in Pauatahanui. Their land had remained nameless for some time then one evening her father announced to his brother "See how beautifully the moon shines on the hills suppose we name it Moonshine". Father of the two brothers Thomas Hollis Stace early settler built Taylor Stace cottage in 1860 now a heritage cottage Pauatahanui.
