

Upper Hutt - Centennial Clock 1840-1940

In February 1939 the Upper Hutt Borough Council proposed the purchase of a memorial clock to commemorate New Zealand's centennial. The council approached the Postmaster General for permission to place the clock on the Upper Hutt Post Office building situated on the corner of Main Street and the south side of Station Street (now known as Geange).

In November 1939 the Borough Council made application to the government for subsidies to be made in respect of the following items Town Clock £30, Motor Camp £150 Rest Room and Library £300 and Swimming Baths £500.

Upper Hutt Borough Council	Upper Hutt 16 th April 1940
The Secretary National Centennial Office Department of Internal Affairs Wellington
Dear Sir
CENTENNIAL MEMORIAL
It appears that a slight misunderstanding arose when the previous application of my Council for a Centennial Memorial subsidy was submitted to the Provincial Council, evidently through the information supplied being insufficiently specific. My Council, therefore, has requested me to renew its application for a memorial subsidy on the proposals detailed hereafter and aggregating a cost of approximately £4410.
LOCAL MEMORIAL – TOWN CLOCK
This proposal is to erect a town clock as a local memorial at a cost of approximately £160. The clock is to be imported through Messrs Littlejohn & Son, and in consequence, war time costs may advance the price a little above that stated. The following are the particulars:- Gent's Pulsynetic Impulse two-faced Bracket Clock together with Master clock, trickle charger and accumulators. Diameter of dials 36 inches.
UPPER HUTT DISTRICT MEMORIAL
This proposal constitutes a district memorial to be placed in Maidstone Park – an area of some 15 acres – which has recently been purchased by my Council. The memorial for which, is the cost is to take the form of an up to date motor camp and includes the setting out of grounds, a camp pavilion and a swimming bath.
“UPPER HUTT DISTRICT CENTENNIAL PARK”
The whole enclosure will be available not only for all residents of this District for all time, but also for the thousands of visitors who frequent it, hence it is felt by my Council to be a most desirable site for a District Centennial Memorial, and one that is believed will merit the fullest support of the Memorial Executive Committee.
My Council would greatly appreciate your favourable consideration of this application for a subsidy on the proposals outlined and will undertake to submit for your approval the fullest details on the undertaking.
Yours faithfully R M Wilmshurst Town Clerk

The authorities were unable to place in clock on the Upper Hutt Borough Council building due to the eaves of the building being too low.

At last the town clock looks to be coming out its case as according to the letter received by the Council the Postal Department has agreed that it be erected outside the Post Office at Upper Hutt.

(Reference Upper Hutt Leader Newspaper collection newspaper 09 December 1943)

What has happened to the Town Clock? That on enquiries we find the position is that the Clock will be erected on the Bank of Australasia building as soon as the OK is confirmed.

(Reference Upper Hutt Leader newspaper collection website newspaper 31 August 1944)

That at long last the public subscribed Town Clock is being erected. That this Clock has been laying in the Council Office for a couple of years, and it's good to see that a start has been made to erect it. That thanks to the Bank of Australasia the Clock has found a home at last.

The Australia and New Zealand Bank Limited was once on the corner of Main Street and north Station Street (later renamed Geange Street). The bank moved on 1877 and the buildings were demolished around 1978.

When the bank was demolished the clock was mounted on a column but the 30 November 1982 the Leader picture showed it being lifted off for repair it had lost its hands on one side and had become erratic.

The Centennial Clock was place in the Main Street pedestrian precinct.
