

Trentham Military Camp Influenza Victims (Trentham Military Hospital and Trentham Military Camp Isolation Cottage Hospital)

Like most districts in New Zealand Upper Hutt was affected by the 1918 Influenza pandemic also known as the Spanish flu. Situated near Upper Hutt was the Trentham Military camp. Trentham had regular contact with the Featherston Military camp where the Influenza epidemic was rife. As a result the citizens of Upper Hutt were in real danger of contracting Influenza.

Around the middle of 1915 Trentham military Camp was occupied by over 7,000 men and as a result there was an early outbreak of influenza and other respiratory diseases resulting in the deaths of 33 service personnel. This early outbreak could not be compared to the later 1918 Influenza pandemic but some lesson were learnt and assisted with the later outbreak.

Many believe that the ship S.S. Niagara brought the Influenza epidemic to New Zealand. She sailed on the 10 July 1918 with New Zealand soldiers aboard as well as the Prime Minister Mr Massey and Minister of Finance Sir J G Ward. The 1918 Parliamentary papers recorded very strong debating and denial by the Government officials regarding the S.S. Niagara.

Around 26 September 1918 it was reported that there were 400 influenza cases at Trentham Military Camp but the Government authorities insisted that it was a mild flu outbreak.

The Trentham Military Camp Quartermaster Major Thomas McCristell was influential in organising and providing beds, blankets, mattresses and equipment for the numerous temporary influenza hospitals set up around the Wellington region during the epidemic. Medical orderlies from the Trentham Military Camp volunteered and assist other local volunteers in the temporary hospitals. The Hutt Valley milk supplies were maintained by soldiers from Trentham Camp. The soldiers also assisted local farmers and butchers. Trentham Military Camp service personnel paid an important part during the influenza epidemic around the Wellington region including the Upper Hutt district.

The Registrar General recorded 383 deaths from Influenza in the Wellington region for the months of October, November and up to 6th December 1918.

Statistic from to the publication "Black November" by Dr Geoffrey Rice records:

Upper Hutt	population of 1,554	6 deaths
Hutt County	population of 5,843	23 deaths
Trentham Military Camp	population of 3,270	77 deaths
Featherston Military Camp	population of 7,800	177 deaths

The Upper Hutt Township was part of the Upper Hutt Town Board. The Hutt country was part of the Hutt Borough of the Hutt Valley and included portions of the Upper Hutt district.

New Zealand Times newspaper 05 December 1918

There have been twelve deaths recorded in the district (including the three at the Upper Hutt emergency hospital) five in the country and seven in the township and of these three were soldiers, four soldiers wives, one a soldiers child, and two had soldier lodgers, only two were un-associated with soldiers or camp.

(Reference Papers past website New Zealand Times & Dominion newspaper 05 December 1918)

There were some military service personnel who died of influenza outside of the district but have connections to the Upper Hutt district and the residents.

Trentham Military Camp and Hospital

Trentham Military Camp had service personnel returning from overseas duty as medically unfit and some died of influenza. Trentham Military Camp had an intake of new young and fit military recruits but many of them died of influenza.

Defence Department reports recorded the names of 62 service personnel who died from Influenza at Trentham Military Camp. Newspaper articles gave the numbers for Trentham Camp sick parade, hospital admission and recorded a total of 39 deaths. Later Wellington newspaper reports recording details of those who died of influenza included their name, rank, service number and the name and address of their next of kin.

An unofficial newspaper article noted over 70 deaths at Trentham Camp and over 160 at Featherston Military Camp.

Statistic from the publication "Black November" by Dr Geoffrey Rice records the Trentham Military Camp total deaths during the influenza epidemic as seventy seven [77].

By using various records I have created below in date order a draft list of deaths followed by a A-Z list of details about the individual Trentham Military Camp service personnel who died of influenza during the epidemic.

#Roll Of Honour - Major Donald Bruce McKenzie whose death is reported to-day from influenza at Trentham, is a nephew of Mr W Bruce, of Wanganui, and was in charge of Messrs Dalgety and Co.'s branch at Gore, Southland, where he enlisted in the First Expeditionary Force. He returned from Egypt in charge of the first batch of sick and wounded in the Willocbra, and went back to Gallipoli, at the evacuation of which he had charge of the last 30 men to leave the peninsula. After that he went to France, and was for some considerable time fighting in the trenches there. After 58 days continuous bombardment in the trenches, he was invalided through shell-shock, and came back to New Zealand. He was appointed chief of the records department at the Trentham and Featherston, camps, which position he occupied at the time of his death. He leaves a wife and one young son to mourn their sad loss. To these sincere sympathy will be extended. Deceased's brother Sergeant-Major McKenzie, who also went with the First Expeditionary Force, is still in Palestine. He has had some remarkable- experiences, having been wounded several times and was on board the Transylvania when she was torpedoed during a howling gale reference Papers past website Wanganui Herald newspaper 20 November 1918

#Major Donald Bruce McKenzie passed away at Trentham on Tuesday morning after only three days sickness of influenza. He was aged forty. Deceased was the eldest grandson of the late Mrs Bruce of this town. He was born at Dunedin and educated at the Boys High School. He was first for two or three years with the late Mr Piper, Duvauchelle, leaving there to enter the office, of Messrs Wright, Stevenson and Co., and afterwards Messrs Dalgety and Co. where he attained the managership of their Gore brunch. He was an ardent volunteer and held a commission in the B Battery of artillery. He left NZ with the Main Body and was in Egypt and all through the Gallipoli campaign in command of the last detachment left to guard the re-embarkation. Later on he was in Egypt and suffered from malaria. He then came back in charge of the first batch of wounded men. Returning to the front he was again ill from shell shock and came home again and placed in charge of the Base Records Office. He was married to Miss Green of Gore and besides his widow he leaves one son. A younger brother Jack, was for some time with Mr G Pilkington, Akaroa, and he also left with the Main Body. He is now in Palestine. Deceased's sister, Miss Bell McKenzie is well known in Akaroa, being
