The Animal Research Station in Wallaceville formerly known as the Wallaceville Veterinary Laboratory established a War Memorial Board. The memorial board was once situated in the Ministry for Primary Industries complex at Ward Street Wallaceville in Upper Hutt.

During World War One the horses from the Remount Depot in Gibbons Street Upper Hutt were treated for injuries and illness at the Wallaceville laboratory. When a decision was made to reduce the number of horses held at the Remount Depot in Gibbons Street the Depot was transferred to the Wallaceville laboratory farm. Towards the end of the war the horses were transferred to Tauherenikau near the Featherston Military Camp.

Wallaceville Animal Research Station closed in 2007 and the land was sold in 2014. In 2017 the land was developed for housing and named the "Wallaceville Estate".

After much searching it is still unknown what happened to the Animal Research Station Wallaceville Roll of Honour.
