1865	Leckie	John	Our Manufactures Brick and Tile Works In accordance with our custom of noting from time to time the progress of our manufactures we give today a brief description of the extent plant and production of two of our largest brick and tile manufactories in doing which we add further proof (if indeed that were necessary) of the progress of Auckland in the development of its own resources. It has even been our most pleasing task to encourage colonial industry and we trust that by a faithful description of what had been accomplished through the energy and enterprise of some other may be stimulated to increase effort in helping forward the general welfare of the colony. There is still a vast field of enterprise lying waste and if the right men could be found to enter into our requirements we believe the colony might soon be rendered independent of many of the importations which are necessary in our present condition. Much credit is due to those who after fighting against prejudice and almost insurmountable difficulties are now reaping the fruits of their enterprise.	Auckland	101

		There are not a few such but we trust ere long their numbers will be greatly augmented. It was our privilege on Saturday to walk over the brickworks just established on the most modern improved plans by Mr John Leckie of Cox's Creek Great North Road. Bricklaying has in all ages and from the earliest time been an occupation for man but by means of the perfection to which our machinery has attained the number of its workers is in these latter days greatly diminished. In the place of the slow hand-process which has during long centuries been the only discovered means of their manufacture we find at this establishment a machine capable of turning off 2,500 bricks every hour. We allude to William Ralston's patent one of which made at his works in Glasgow has been sent out to the order of Mr John Leckie and may now be seen at his brickworks in full working order. The manufactory has been in contemplation by its indefatigable proprietor for the past four years and several areas of ground were tested before the present site was fixed upon. Numerous expensive experiments were tried with our clays and their respective merits fully tested. Being sanguine of success from long practical experience the owner felt himself warranted in going to the expense of some £4,000 or £5,000 in the creation of a plant which should not only astonish the natives" but be of infinite value to the place and tend as much as anything to advance the interests of the inhabitants. Whatever convenience may be felt in a neat wooden structure for a dwelling house it must be admitted that brick is the material par excellence of all large buildings and business premises and of which even family dwellings themselves ought to be build as the colony progresses. With this knowledge then we hail with satisfaction such an extensive and economical method of multiplying this useful article. The works in question are eligibly situated about forty minutes walk from town with a good road to this ground although it might of course be improved here and there by a few loads of scoria. Besides the easy access to town, which a good road affords a tramway, is to be constructed over the short distance between the works and the creek on which there is as punt belonging to Mr Leckie capable of carrying

		many thousands direct to the Queen Street Wharf. The works comprise some acres of ground in the vicinity of the creek and some capital drying-grounds have been provided. The covered ground for use in wet seasons is 120 feet by 24 a substantially built. Ralston's patent requires 12-horse power to work it and produces 50 bricks every minute. The machine consists of a crank and slide with drums and moulds four in number. The raw clay is brought along a tramway to the cylinder for the machine and is shovelled down as the supply diminished in the same way as a furnace is supplied with fuel. The cylinder is fitted up with twelve large knives each about 50lb in weight set at right angles exactly in the same way as the screw of a steamer. The cylinder is of course kept in motion and the clay is by this means pulverised and brought to a proper consistency for the moulds when it is forced out underneath and a slide meets it whose work it is to cut it off to the proper size. The crank then falls on the moulding-box giving a pressure to the clay of 15 tons. There are four of these moulds – two on each side – at each of which a little boy is in attendance to receive the brick as it is ejected by the machine on to a small piece of wood used for its carriage to the drying-shed. These boys are kept constantly at work receiving the bricks and transferring them to a barrow by their side, which is emptied every few minutes by labourers whose duty it is to supply the drying yards. The machine requires six boys to receive the fruits of its work who have only one minute in which to lift every 20 bricks. The moulds are being constantly watered as the machine is in full operation from a running pipe affixed over each and supplied from a tank above. This is to prevent the clay from adhering to the mould and give a smooth surface to the brick. The clay is sprinkled as it is supplied to the cylinder with scoria or other ash in the same proportion as an agriculturist seasons his grounds. This gives greater strength and durability to the brick and is absolutely essential to the production of good material. To show the perfection of the machinery employed we need only mention that there is a pan attached for the purpose of crushing this seasoning element to its proper fineness. The pan revolves by means of two shafts requiring ten horsepower to work them and is 6 feet 6 inches in diameter with a

		false bottom and 20 inches deep with rollers 4 feet 2 inches by 10 and a half on the face each giving a pressure of 25 cwt. The scoria use is at present brought from Mount Eden but broken bricks will be crushed and made available as the works progress. The rollers are stationary – the pan containing the metal revolving and carrying its underneath their heavy tread. The rollers fall and cant to suit the material they contain. It is emptied and filled by hand labourer and only used when the brick machine is stopped in consequence of the heavy power required to work it. The engine – a model of mechanical skill – was also brought from the manufactory of Robert Drummond of Glasgow and is a 16 horse power horizontal very unique in appearance and admirably constructed. Both engine and boiler with the machinery complete were fitted up by Mr Leckie himself who is a mechanical engineer of considerable abilities. The cylinders are worked by one of Parnell’s patent gutta-percha belts ten inches broad by sixty-three long and six ply thick supplied from the works of the North British India rubber Company (Limited) Edinburgh. The material is not very commonly used but has been pronounced unexceptionable by some of the largest manufacturing firms in Europe. The boiler from Drummonds Calton Foundry, Glasgow is characterised by the same superiority of make and supplied with all recent improvements for prevention of accidents. The patent indicator with which it is adored is so simple that “he who runs may read”. The height of water is told by numerals the float in the boiler regulating the finger of the indicator – so that if the foreman will but use his eyes occasionally in the same way as he acquaints himself with the time of day an explosion is next to impossible. The extent of the lever is 50lbs weight. The boiler chimney is 5 feet by 34 feet in height. At present a sufficiently of water is available for the use of the engine from a 25 feet well but if the supply gets less it is intended to inset a bore. A force pump will also be erected to fill the tank for supplying the boiler of the engine with water the platform of the brick-machine and the cistern fro the pan. The patent tile-making machine by Anderson of Shuttleston has not yet been fixed up but when it is will be a most useful addition to the works. It is provided with dies from one and a half inch to six and a half inch horseshoe drain titles and can

			be worked either by power or hand. It is capable of producing 12,000 tiles per day with the attendance of three boys and two men. The clay is pressed through the mould by a piston and six tiles are cut off at once. The bricks produced at these works are stamped with the works "Caledonian" Brickworks Richmond Auckland and are of exquisite fineness and solidity throughout owing to the perfection of the machinery employed in their manufacture. The proprietor invites any experiment calculated to test their quality. Owing to the large number of bricks which this extensive plant is capable of producing daily – namely 20,000 in eight hours- it has been thought advisable by some to form a joint stock company for its working and we believe the idea will be carried out. That such a compact work should stay idle for any time is very undesirable the more so with our present and larger prospective demand for bricks. If our Lunatic Asylum was kept at a standstill through a failure in the supply of bricks by the original contractor how much more likely is it that when the erection of our public buildings is commenced the want will be even more felt. At such a time Richmond Works would prove most invaluable. For the present the works have been let to four or five practical hands who are to commence the working of the plant in good earnest during the present week. = Daily Southern Cross 2 January 1865

1865	LECKIE	Mr	Accident – We extract the following from the Oamaru times of Thursday 13th Instant: - An accident of a singular and painful character happened a day or two ago to a young man named Leckie employed on Sir Henry Young's station at Oamarama. It appears that he was out shooting and in the course of his wanderings he found himself standing with the gun in front of his body and his two hands placed on top of the muzzle as if in an attitude of rest or watchfulness. On top of his hands he held his chin for some time, when on removing which for the purpose of lifting the gun the piece in some manner got entangled with his trousers or with some scrub at his feet and ere he could remove his	Oamaru left hand the trigger went off and the contents of the gun shattered that member in a frightful manner. With indomitable pluck Leckie who is a lad about nineteen years of age bound up the mutilated hand and started on a run home about two miles distant carrying the gun in the same hand which had been so much maimed. On his way he found the ramrod had slipped out and he retraced his steps to find it. Feeling rather faint then he refreshed himself by bathing his forehead in a creek after which he again made for home. Yesterday accompanied by his brother he arrived in Oamaru after a journey of eight miles on horseback. Procuring the attendance of Dr Fleming that gentleman administered chloroform to his patient and proceeded to dress the wound. It was found necessary to amputate the two centre fingers which operation was very skilfully performed. The bones of the hand were most severely cut up and shattered a fact, which rendered the treatment of the wound of a very intricate nature. The young man bore up bravely and we believe is now doing well. We need scarcely state that had he delayed for a moment longer to remove his chin from his hands when in the act of lifting the gun the accident would certainly have been attended with fatal consequences. Mr Leckie was age 19 so he would have been born about 1846 = Wellington Independent Newspaper October 19 1865 page 5

1871	LECKIE	John	Messrs' A Beetham and T Macfarland were presiding magistrates at the Police Court yesterday morning. The chief case was a family squabble between William Slater and John Leckie, the former of whom was the son of Leckie's wife. Painful disclosures were made as to the relationship subsisting in the family, which both parties must be sorry for when their passions cool down. The case in which the old man Leckie was prosecutor was found proven and Slater fined £2 and full costs or two months imprisonment, and thereafter to find two sureties in £25 each to keep the peace for six months. 1871	LECKIE	John & Mary	Police Court – Friendly Relatives – William Slater was charged on warrant by John Leckie with having violently assaulted him on the 17 th January by striking him and otherwise abusing him – Prisoner pleaded not guilty – Mr Keetley appeared for the prisoner and Mr Beveridge for the complainant – John Leckie related to the circumstances of the quarrel. From his evidence it appeared that the prisoner was a son of complainant's wife that some two years ago plaintiff had gone to Sydney and from certain circumstances, which there came to his knowledge he decided to return to Auckland. Prisoner and complainant's wife "wished to get him out of the road" as he had letters in his "pocket to show". On the evening in question as he was retiring to bed his bedroom was rushed by the prisoner. He was seized by the shirt by the prisoner who shouted "You – wretch I'll kill you." His shirt was all torn and was produced - a rather ragged and bloody garment. He was violently assaulted and from prisoner's threats, he was afraid that he would do him some grievous bodily harm. Frances Jones residing at Richmond, gave corroborative evidence. Plaintiff came to his house on the night in question with his shirt all torn; he was bleeding and bore	Auckland	101

			many marks of having rough treatment. Dr Goldsbro gave evidence upon the nature of the wounds plaintiff had sustained. He had no appearance of having been drinking; other wounds had been lately inflicted. This was plaintiff's case. Mary Leckie wife of plaintiff gave her version of the affair and said that "one was a bad as the other". She dragged the sleeve out of the plaintiff's shirt, dragged him into the bedroom and locked him in, but he afterwards went out by the window. Had she known that he was going into town he would never have got out of the house. Cross-examined by Mr Beveridge, She did not like her son better than her husband. She was disappointed when he came back from Australia. She wished to get away from her husband, and to live with he son. She was outside the house when the squabble between her son and husband began. The two were scuffling when she went into the bedroom, the noise attracted her then. She could not say whether her son was drunk, he might have had a glass. Her son was very excited. She could not say that he son was ever in her husband's bedroom since his return from Australia. Mr Keetly re-examined after which the Court examined at some length. A cross action – John Leckie was then charged by William Slater with having on the 17th January violently assaulted him by striking him on the face &c –Mr Keetley for the complainant and Mr Beveridge for the defendant. William engineer gave the particulars of the origin of the quarrel – something about a "block" said to have been got from Thornton, Smith and Firth's mill. The evidence given was similar to that in the above case. - In cross examination it appeared that the ownership of the house in which the parties reside in Richmond was at the bottom of the dispute – Counsel having address the Court the Magistrate retired to consider their decision. On their return the Chairman said In the case of Leckie against Slater the defendant is fined £2 and full costs and in default two months imprisonment and thereafter to find two sureties in £25 each to keep the peace for a period of six months. The case of Slater against Leckie is dismissed. = Daily Southern Cross Wednesday 01 February 1871

1872	LECKIE	Andrew	An accident occurred at Pine Hill on the evening of the 27 th to a lad of 16 named Andrew Leckie son of Mr James Leckie settler. It appears that the boy got a gun from a person with whom he worked and went to shoot kakas. On going into the bush he left the gun, which was loaded on a log of wood, with the muzzle pointed towards himself. The gun fell and went off the contents entering Leckie's left side under the heart. The boy says that the hammer was down on the nipple at the time that the gun fell of the timber and that it must have come into contact with some of the under wood which raised it sufficiently high to explode the cap on returning to the nipple. No one was with him when the accident occurred = Otago Witness 26 October 1872	Dunedin

1873	LECKIE	John	Smoke was observed issuing from the shop of Mr John Leckie butcher by Sergeant Hanlon whilst o duty in George Street on Tuesday evening. On breaking into the premises he found the place filled with smoke and a quality of papers and sawdust burning in the fireplace. Part of the floor was also charred and the building certainly appeared to be in danger. After extinguishing the fire, Mr Leckie was acquainted with the fact. 1876	LECKIE	Archibald	Poisoned drink (to the editor) Sir As a rule sermons and remarks made by ministered of religion at burials are held to be above criticism and justly so. But when men who have the prefix "rev" to their names make gross and unfounded charges against the life and character of a community they should not be allowed to go unchallenged. On Thursday last the inhabitants of this place were inflected with a tirade of the most intemperate and insulting nature. The Rev Mr Isitt at the burial of our late townsman A Leckie (whose death no doubt was accelerated by Alcoholic liquors) stated that the warder at the Tuapeka Hospital the place where the death occurred had informed him that A Leckie was killed with poisoned drink and the Rev Mr Isitt inferred in a most unmistakeable manner that the publicans he had poisoned the drink and he exhorted the publicans present to close their houses and get an honest living and that they did so the Lord would find them an opening. Had Mr Isitt confined his remarks to the evils arising from the use of alcoholic liquors most of his hearers would have agreed with him ill-times for there were men representatives of many creeds who attended the burial out of respect to the memory of the deceased not to hear a stump oration on the evils of drink they would have been better pleased to have heard of good deeds (and they surely were not few) preformed by the deceased during his file. Is it Christian charity to write good deeds on water and to engrave errors on stone and men dare call themselves followers of Christ who spread base calumny on the bare assertion of what some man had said. I agree with the Rev	Tuapeka

			Mr Isitt that intemperance is a curse but there is intemperance of speech that is as great if a not greater evil and many good causes are injured by advocates displaying more zeal than discretion. The Rev gentleman is young and he has yet to learn that it does not follow that all who are so blind and ignorant as to differ from him are not necessarily as he so graphically puts it “sons of damnation” One can hardly recognise so-called servants of Christ in men who display so much self-satisfaction and righteousness and who take upon themselves more power than their Master ever aspires to. If Mr Isitt is at all anxious to spread the cause of Good Templarism he would meet with an appreciative audience if he would condescend to give an address here. I might mention that the publicans here have yet to learn that their calling is a dishonest one and if they have any choice in the matter they prefer leaving judgment in the hand of the Lord with whom Mr Isitt seems to be on such familiar terms. In conclusion I might state that I have not time at present to answer any effusions that this may bring forth. I would nit have written now but I felt that I could not allow such a stigma to rest on the heads of our respective publicans who conduct their businesses on the same principles as are done at other places. If the system of allowing public houses to exist is wrong the men who keep them should not be blamed for while people will drink and the government of a country accepts the revenues derived there from the evil is sure to exit –I am & c CHARITY Waipori 3rd April = Tuapeka Times 05 April 1876
1876	LECKIE	A	The following letter addressed by Mr L M Isitt to Mr Corrison wardsman of the Taupeka Hospital has been handed to us for publication Dunedin April 6 Mr Corrison Dear sir I exceedingly regret when speaking at Waipori in condemnation of the practices that led to poor Leckie’s death I used an unguarded expression which had caused your name to be bought into the papers. Mr remarks were misquoted and the allusion to you opinion that the deceased was injured by bad drink so reported as to give the impression that I had based all my statements upon information derived from you. Such was not the case as my remarks were called forth by what I had myself seen and learned from the deceased himself and some of his real friends – I remain &c	Tuapeka

1878	LECKIE	Colonel	Officers of the militia appear to be more common than privates in Wellington. They wear their honors very modestly and no one ever hears anything of their claims to military rank except when a special jury case is called on at the Supreme Court. Etc – Colonel Leckie claimed exemption on the ground that he was an officer in her Majesty's service and his Honor ordered his name to be struck off	Wellington

1880	LECKIE	Colonel	Colonel Leckie arrived in Hamilton on Thursday evening by the late train and was met by the Officer commanding the district Colonel Lyon with whom he proceeded yesterday morning to Cambridge. Colonel Leckie will hold inspection at Alexandra, Te Awamutu and Cambridge arriving Hamilton next Tuesday and holding review of Volunteers as announced in our advertising columns. By reference to the last quarterly Army List available we find that Colonel William Leckie entered Her Majesty's 39 th Dorsetshire Regiment of Foot on the 10 th of March 1843. He obtained his Lieutenancy on the on the 16 April 1845 and became Captain on 02 April 1852 brevet major 6 th June 1856 and major of his regiment on 23 October 1860. He served at the siege and fall of Sebastopol in 1855 including attacks on the 18 th June and 8 th September (Crimean medal and clasp, Knight of the Legion of Honor and Turkish medal). I sis hoped that the visit of Colonel Leckie bears some evidence that the Government intend to take greater interest in the Volunteer movement than they have hitherto. = Waikato Times 06 March 1880 Also report on the Hamilton Light Infantry parade by Colonel Leckie =Waikato Times 09 March 1880	Hamilton
